

The Liberal Studies Pre-Approved Environmental Studies Program

The Environmental Studies Program prepares students for a broad range of environmental careers. Employment possibilities range from various state and federal agencies to positions with numerous private agencies or corporations.

Most positions in environmental studies ask for a generalist who is able to deal with specialists from many areas of academics. It is also expected that such a generalist have her/his own area of expertise. The core curriculum is designed to train students in the broad area of environmental studies so that one is able to deal with many areas of the field.

You will complete the 64 course credits listed on the Environmental Studies Check Sheet. In addition, a minor comprised of 30 credits must also be completed. The minor should relate to an interest that relates to your program.
