12:30-1:30	Topic 1: Creating personal presence in online courses. Current research indicates that students are more satisfied with their online learning experience and show greater success in achieving course learning objectives when they have a strong sense of the instructor's presence and involvement in teaching the online course. During this hour I will discuss some techniques which faculty have utilized for increasing "personal presence" in online

2:00-3:00	courses. Ample time will be allotted for discussion. Topic 2: Web conferencing with Elluminate. Elluminate is now integrated with all Blackboard course shells. During this hour Jon Norris and I will demonstrate how to create an Elluminate web conference from within Blackboard and demonstrate some of the salient features of Elluminate for both live, internet based interaction with students and for creating recordings of lectures, discussions or tutorials.
3:30-4:30	Topic 3: Posting documents; receiving and returning student assignments in Blackboard. All courses in the Banner registration system have associated Blackboard shells. During this hour I will demonstrate various ways faculty teaching both on-campus and online courses can use Blackboard to post documents for student review as well as create links where students can submit electronic assignments to faculty, and faculty can return them to students.
