What is Counseling?

Counseling is the process of talking with a trained professional to assist you with sorting out emotional, interpersonal, behavioral, and social difficulties. This process may include individual or couples/marital/partner counseling. Regardless of the mode of counseling, there are some important points to highlight about this process for you as an EOU student:

- ◆ It is normal for university students to experience a variety of struggles and they often benefit from attending counseling.
- ◆ Counseling is confidential (with some exceptions, which your counselor can explain).
- ◆ Counseling is a collaborative process between you and your counselor.

Why Counseling?

Students seek counseling for a variety of concerns. The following are examples of the types of problems common to college students:

- ◆ Anxiety and depression
- ◆ Relationship issues
- ◆ Homesickness
- ◆ Eating behavior and body image issues
- ◆ Academic stress, test anxiety, and/or time management
- ◆ Grief and loss
- ◆ Concerns related to one's racial, ethnic, religious, sexual, and/or gender identity
- ◆ Physical, emotional, and sexual abuse
- ◆ Traumatic experiences
- ◆ Alcohol and drug use

- ◆ The initial appointment is called an 'intake', which lasts approximately 20-30 minutes.
- ◆ During the intake, you and your counselor will discuss potential treatment options.
- ◆ If long-term counseling is wanted and/or needed, a referral to a mental health professional in the community may be made.
- ◆ You can let Counseling Center staff know if drop-in times do not work with your schedule.
