Within this Packet

Within this packet you will find information related to qualifying and applying for the Early Childhood program at Eastern Oregon University. You will also find an application form, course offerings schedule, and the program planning form.

Program Description

Eastern Oregon University and the College of Education offer a non-licensure major in Early Childhood Education. The Early Childhood Education major is offered completely online and can be competed in two years with previous completion of general education requirements (see below).

The Early Childhood Education degree is a non-licensure program designed to prepare students for working with young children from birth to age 8 and their families. Students will receive in-depth knowledge of early childhood foundations, child development and learning, curriculum development, and inclusive practices that recognize the richness of all children and families. In addition, the ECED program at EOU provides students with the knowledge and skills they need to advocate for and implement equitable educational practices for all students. Students will then be able to apply this knowledge toward creating high-quality early care and educational programs that focus on developing appropriate learning experiences for young children and supportive practices for families. After completion of the ECED program, students are prepared to work in the private sector as teachers, program directors and administrators, advocates, educational coordinators, or policy makers in schools, businesses, mental health agencies, and community, private or church-related programs.

EOU offers two ECED bachelor's degrees, a Bachelor of Arts/Science (BA/BS) and a Bachelor of Applied Science (BAS).
- The Bachelor of Arts/Science requires 60 general education credits, and students who wish to obtain their teacher licensure may continue their education in EOU's Master of Arts in Teaching licensure preparation program by completing this degree.
- The Bachelor of Applied Science requires that the applicant already hold an Associate of Applied Science in ECED from a community college. The BAS requires 45 general education credits, however students who complete this degree will not be eligible to apply for many master's degree programs, including EOU's Master of Arts in Teaching.
- Students must select the degree they are applying for in this application but may switch their degree plan in the future.
