Q. Your Story:

R. I arrived on campus as a freshman in the fall of 1953 and was assigned to a room on the bottom floor of Hunt Hall. It ended up that three of us freshmen boys had to share the room (Two on bunk beds and one on a twin bed in the middle of the room.)

It seems like there were five rooms on that bottom floor. That floor was really the basement of the dorm, but there was a door on the west end of the hall and it opened up at ground level.

All the rooms on that floor were occupied by freshmen boys. We shared the floor with the laundry room and storage areas.

We soon learned that floor was called "The Mole Hole" by everyone in the dorm and, as the year progressed we shared a certain amount of pride in being called Mole Holers.

We "Mole Holers" became very good friends and had many interesting and exciting experiences together. Lasting friendships developed.

Almost all of us went into education and most of us spent our entire careers, until retirement, as successful educators throughout Oregon.

Even today, 65 years later, four of us "Mole Holers" still get together almost annually for lunch with our wives.

We enjoy reminiscing about those years in Eastern and, especially in Hunt Hall. We also regularly stay in touch via the internet.
